TEEN DREAM

After a January 2008 dance performance on Live with Regis & Kelly, Chelsea Krost, then 16 years old, confided to cohost Kelly Ripa that the job she really wanted was Ripa's. Two months later, the Boca Raton teen founded Teen Talk Live, a radio talk show that covers topics from fashion and relationships to more serious issues such as cyber bullying and eating disorders. "My ultimate goal was to create a place where teens could talk amongst their peers about things they face every day," she says. With the show's popularity and perceived significance growing, Krost has been picked up by LA Talk Radio as its only teen host. —Liza Grant Smith

KROST ALSO USES HER EXPOSURE TO AID DESERVING CHARITIES SUCH AS GIVE A GIRL A CHANCE, THE PAJAMA PROGRAM AND SOS CHILDREN'S VILLAGES.

NOW HEAR THIS

While "turn it down" is a weathered, yet oft-ignored, rant against the younger generation, Kathlyn Maguire of West Palm Beach has adopted it as her battle cry. Maguire, who has had significant hearing loss for most of her life, is the founder of Empowerment Through Hearing, a nonprofit dedicated to increasing awareness of hearing loss issues. Listen Up!, a book on hearing loss commissioned by the organization, is now part of the eighth grade curriculum in all Palm Beach County schools. Maguire has never viewed her condition as a disability. "It's allowed me to be more understanding and compassionate," she says. —L.G.S.

MANE MAN

Ever notice that celebrities rarely have bad hair days? Don't credit genetics; praise hairstylist Ken Paves, who keeps the coils of A-listers such as Jennifer Lopez and Eva Longoria-Parker looking red-carpet worthy. Palm Beachers needn't jet off to the stylist's Beverly Hills salon. Paves has joined forces with Eleven Spa in Delray Beach to offer the Ken Paves Salon at Eleven. Despite a hectic schedule, his own line of styling products and his clip-in hair extensions inspired by client and partner Jessica Simpson, Paves' passion never sleeps. He says, "I did a consultation for the flight attendants on Air France and even clipped a set of HairDo clip-in bangs onto a flight attendant as a gift as she handed me my dinner." —L.G.S.

"MY SOLE GOAL IS TO MAKE [WOMEN] FEEL BEAUTIFUL, WHICH IN RETURN RESONATES AS OUTWARD BEAUTY," PAVES SAYS.

NOISE-INDUCED HEARING LOSS IS A PREVENTABLE CONDITION THAT AFFECTS A STAGGERING ONE IN EIGHT AMERICAN YOUNGSTERS.
